

RUIN OVERTAKES GERMAN PRINCE

Phillip Zu Eulenburg Under Arrest and Prisoner in Hospital.

HARDEN'S STORY WAS TRUE

DISGRACED MAN CLOSE FRIEND OF THE KAISER.

Berlin, May 8.—Prince Phillip Zu Eulenburg was today placed under actual arrest. The crown prosecutor took this step as a result of the testimony given by two men at the prince's bedside yesterday to the effect that Prince Zu Eulenburg had been guilty of wrongful actions with them twenty-five years ago.

Prince Zu Eulenburg was involved in the court scandal in Berlin that grew out of the charges brought by Maximilian Harden, editor of Die Zukunft, last summer. At the second Harden trial the court declared that all the charges made by Harden were absolutely without foundation. After the termination of the Harden case the public prosecutor started proceedings against Eulenburg and the arrest of today is the outcome. The prince was taken into custody at his castle at Liebenberg and brought in an ambulance to the hospital, where he was detained pending a further investigation of a charge of perjury made against him.

Ruin for the Prince.

The prince's arrest is taken to mean the irrevocable ruin of the brilliant man, who was at one time a confidential friend of Emperor William. The prince had been nearer his majesty during the greater part of his reign than any other German subject. He might have been chancellor of the empire if he had not refused the responsibility incident to this post. This he did possibly because of stories of secret misconduct have long been circulating against him, so much so that he has lived on the brink of disclosure for the past ten years. He voluntarily gave up the position of German ambassador at Vienna in 1902 because, as was commonly gossiped at the time, a group of his enemies threatened him with exposure.

After resigning at Vienna the prince returned to Berlin, where he was often with the emperor.

Delighted the Emperor.

The statement that Prince Zu Eulenburg disapproved the emperor in political matters had been made by men who sought to advise the prince in the imperial confidence by intimating that there was danger to the state in the alleged fact that the emperor turned from his constitutional advisers to a friend behind a screen who was responsible to no one but his majesty himself. This statement, whose veracity never has been confirmed, but everybody in official life has known that Emperor William was delighted with the companionship of the prince, whose conversation was always cheerful, full of wit, anecdote and dramatic climaxes, natural and easy, and touched, now and then, with graceful and sentimental expressions. His epigrams were more feared than those of any other tongue about the court. The prince is a gifted writer and is the author of no less than eleven volumes of fairy tales, short stories and poems and several plays which he published under the name Svenson.

Nerve Did Not Desert Him.

The prince's charm of manner did not desert him today. He is a sick man and the joints of his legs are swollen from neuritis, but when a physician representing the examining judge informed him that he was well enough to be taken a prisoner to the hospital he quickly called his valet and dressed with difficulty, the prince's amiable talk the while being interrupted every now and then by grimaces of pain.

As the prince in the second Harden trial at Berlin swore to his innocence of the practices insinuated by Harden in Die Zukunft the presentation against him is based upon the charge of perjury. Police agents watched him through all last night standing in a room with a sleeping apartment and keeping him under observation through an open door. The prince was restless until about midnight, from which hour he slept quietly until long after daybreak. One of his sons, who has been his constant companion recently, accompanied him to the door of the hospital.

It is possible that the prince will be released in $250,000 bail. The prince is presumed to have in his possession a great many letters, possibly more than 100, from Emperor William, containing expressions of the imperial estimate of leading personages in German and of some European sovereigns. The reports concerning these letters probably are exaggerated, but even so there would appear to be enough truth in the rumor to place a wound on the prince's power to create much embarrassment by their publication.

Weeping of Villagers.

A crowd of weeping villagers gathered in the village of Liebenberg, where the prince is greatly beloved, to bid him farewell. The automobile made slow progress, covering the forty miles, owing to the prisoner's condition. He was suffering greatly from pain, and several times during the journey it was necessary to administer opiates. The prince was carried from the automobile into the hospital.

The legal representative of Prince Zu Eulenburg moved the release of his client in $250,000 bail, but the court refused to acquiesce.

METCALFE GOES

DOWN THE LINE

not be aboard ship, his flag will officially leave the deck of the Connecticut, as the sharp-speaking rifles on either bridge boom out their parting salute of thirteen guns. A few minutes later another thirteen guns will mark the assumption of command by a new chief, Admiral Thomas transferring his headquarters to the Connecticut and exchanging the subordinate flag of red for the commanding pennant of blue.

Usual Ceremonies Impossible.

Admiral Evans' leaving of the fleet this will date from the journey through the Golden Gate, when, clad in the once-breasted frock coat of "undress B," the official uniform for entering port, he stood upon the bridge of the flagship for the last time. Usually retiring admirals are rowed ashore by the men of the fleet. There can be no ceremonies of this kind tomorrow. Accompanied by members of his family and by officers of his personal staff, Admiral Evans will leave tomorrow afternoon for his home in Washington, where he will remain awaiting orders until the date of retirement on his 62d birthday, August 18. Admiral Thomas will be in command of the Atlantic fleet only until May 15, when he, too, hauls down his flag for all time, to return home on sailing orders until his retirement in the fall. Rear Admiral Charles M. Sperry will assume command with the departure of Admiral Thomas and will take the fleet on its excursion to the Sound, beginning May 15 and on its tour of the world, starting from San Francisco July 7.

Today's review was marked by the customary formalities of booming cannon, of ship sides manned with blue-jackets at attention, of the quarter deck with officers and marine guards, of red-coated bands playing the national anthem, of rainbow flags flying from jack-staffs, across the trucks surmounting the fighting tops and down again to flagstaffs at the stern, of "ho-boons" whistles piping across the decks, of the official calls upon the reviewing official after the Yorktown had made its tour of the anchored lines and had taken station in the midst of the flagship Connecticut, Minnesota, West Virginia and Whipple at the heads of the four long columns.

Officers, in full dress uniform and attended by members of their staffs, came over the side from the starboard gangway where they were greeted by the black of flags, the ruffle of drums by saluting lines of side-boys at the gangways and by a cordial handshake from the chief officer of the navy department. Other than the official introductions, the ceremonies aboard the Yorktown were simple and informal.

Silver Service Presented.

The afternoon was marked by the presentation of silver services to the battleship Nebraska and the armored cruiser California, the elaborate silver and table sets being the gifts of the states after which the splendid ships were named. Governor Sheldon of Nebraska and Governor Gillett of California personally made the presentation speeches. Tonight's interest is divided between two shore functions taking rank among the principal entertainments provided for the fleet. At the St. Francis hotel the official dinner of welcome by the city of San Francisco was presided over by Mayor Edward R. Taylor, who made an address filled with renewed assurance of the city's overflowing hospitality. Rear Admiral Thomas responded in behalf of the fleet. There were a number of other speeches both formal and informal. Covers were laid for 300, all of the flag and commanding officers of the fleet in the harbor being present.

Following the banquet at a later hour and attended by all the higher officers and a veritable host of the younger men, came the dance of the Friday Night club, probably the most exclusive organization of the city, at the Fairmont hotel under the direction of E. M. Greenway. A distinguished company of the city's social set, including most of the debutantes of the season, helped to make the dance one of the notable events of the fleet's stay. The enlisted men of the fleet are receiving special attention by the reception committee. Tonight there were wrestling matches, and athletic events in the official naval pavilion, where some sort of entertainment is provided each evening. Next week the blue-jackets and marines are to be feasted and taken on excursions in large numbers.

Kidney complaint kills more people than any other disease. This is due to the disease being so insidious that it gets a good hold on the system before it is recognized. Foley's Kidney Cure will prevent the development of fatal disease if taken in time. P. J. Hill Drug Co., "The Never Substitutors."

LAMPHERE HAD

KNOWLEDGE OF WOMAN'S DEEDS

last night, and I am going to make her get down tonight, unless she comes up with some money.

"I know things about her that would raise an awful row if they were told. She bought me this suit of clothing that I am wearing, but she does not like to come up with the cash, and that is what I need and must have."

Theory of Prosecuting Attorney.

It is Prosecuting Smith's theory that Lamphere had gained knowledge by which Andrew Heiglelele was done to death; that the prisoner attempted to use this knowledge to extort money from the woman; that she became terror-stricken at his threats and undertook the series of prosecutions against him which resulted in his trial before a lunacy commission and his being thrice arrested at her instigation; that Lamphere attempted to break vengeance upon her for these actions and for her refusal to give him money or to continue the relations which he insisted between them prior to the appearance here in January of Heiglelele; that the fire at the Gunness home was started by Lamphere, but that he had no idea of causing the death of Mrs. Gunness and the children. The laws of Indiana, however, provide that arson resulting in death shall be considered as murder in the first degree, even though the fatal outcome of the first crime is not intended. It is on this statute that Lamphere is to be tried.

Jennie Olsen's Disappearance

Mrs. Leo Greening today told the prosecutor that the night before Jennie Olsen's disappearance her son Emil, who had been employed at the farm, had seen two strangers there. One of the strangers, he told his mother, was a man dressed in women's clothes. He said further that Mrs. Gunness explained their presence by saying that they were a professor and his wife from a school in California, to which she was about to send Miss Olsen. Greening said that the couple arrived at the farm after dark, but that they and Miss Olsen were gone when he arose early the next morning. Mrs. Gunness told him that the trio had taken a late night train for the west. Greening started work on the farm on a choir boy in November, 1906. Two weeks later the mysterious couple came there. He left the employ of Mrs. Gunness a few months later and went to Oklahoma City.

FIRST HUSBAND'S DEATH.

Suspicious Circumstance in Connection with Insurance Policy.

Chicago, May 8.—A sinister fact in connection with the death of Max Sorenson, the first husband of Mrs. Gunness, was revealed today, when it became known that he died just one day before an insurance policy which he had been carrying for some years would have expired, and two days after a second policy which he intended to substitute for the first had become operative.

A theory that part of the Gunness farm at Laporte was a private burying ground was advanced today by reason, the first husband of Mrs. Gunness, residing in this city. The records of the land show that from 1851 to 1875 the land was owned by Dr. R. Carr of Laporte, and Larson believes that the bones are those of people buried there by the physician.

The Laporte authorities are now trying to ascertain whether or not Dr. Carr had a private burying ground on the place.

Not at Oklahoma City.

Oklahoma City, Okla., May 8.—Mrs. M. C. Hicks, who conducts a boarding house at 305 West Tenth street, this city, said this afternoon:

"A letter once came here addressed to Emil C. Greening, but I sent it back to the sender, whose address I do not remember. There was never any such person as the night at my house, but there was a Fred Greening, a big Dutchman, who was a sign painter, but he left our house about two months ago, and I do not know where he went."

LINDSAY WINS SUIT.

Oregon Short Line Must Pay for Missing Suit Case.

David Lindsay will be paid for his suit case which he lost in the Oregon Short Line station last summer. He estimated its value at $20.50 and brought suit against the company in the city court. Judge Whitaker decided in favor of the company and Lindsay appealed. A jury in Judge Lewis' court yesterday thought the other way and gave Lindsay the amount asked for.

IN POLICE CIRCLES.

In police court yesterday the case of H. J. Bradley, accused of striking Mrs. Sarah J. Mansfield and dragging her from a buggy, was continued until May 15.

James O'Neil, whose name invariably appears on the police court docket within a few days after he has completed a sentence for drunkenness, was in police court again yesterday afternoon, on the usual charge and sent to jail for thirty days.

The cases against Tom Gross and George Sonopulos, charged with fighting, which have occupied the attention of police court for several days, were dismissed by Judge Diehl yesterday.

W. F. Smith and Martin Anderson, arrested by Bicycle Officer Grundvig for riding bicycles on the sidewalk, were fined $2 each in police court yesterday afternoon.

Edward Bush and Joseph Henry, messenger boys, arrested on the charge of holding up C. M. Hyde two weeks ago and robbing him of $16.50 and a gold watch, were discharged in Justice Dane T. Smith's court yesterday. Several messenger boys, who were witnesses, proved an alibi for the boys accused of the crime.
